Pottery (ART 1002 CE)

This class explores the art of forming and shaping clay. Anyone can participate, regardless of skill level. Working one-on-one with students, instructor Paul Crocker will guide new potters as their skills improve. You will advance at your own rate while making creative pieces. You will explore hand-building techniques such as Coil, Slab, and Wheel, as well as learn how to incorporate decorations and embellishments to improve surface design. Firing options such as copper reds, crystalline glazes, raku, and pit firing will be utilized. Experienced students will continue your exploration of ceramic art by practicing advanced hand techniques.
